General Election: November 8

Don't forget to vote in the Federal and State General Election on Tuesday, November 8. Polling places are open 6am–9pm. Voters in Danby vote in the Danby Fire Station (1780 Danby Road, for districts 1 and 3), and the West Danby Fire Station (47 Sylvan Lane, for district 2).

For information, contact the Tompkins County Board of Elections, [votetompkins.com] or 607.274.5522.

Ways to Meet your Neighbors

Our mission, as a Community Council and as the Danby News, is to find ways to bring our community together.

In a town like Danby, this is not as easy as it sounds. There is no central school—elementary, middle, or high—where children and families can get to know each other. There is no post office, where residents run into neighbors while sending or picking up mail. Much to the dismay of many, and for many reasons, there is no local store where you might chat with folks over a cup of coffee or be able to bond while complaining about the rising cost of milk, bread, and eggs.

During the past year we've been helping us get to know each other, person by person, through short profiles of some of the interesting folks who live here. We'll continue that through the winter and into the new year. We enjoy talking with you and learning about other interesting folks to talk to. We've introduced you to cider makers, horse breeders, instrument builders, fiber artists, and more. Look forward to learning more about some of our local first responders, potters, wood craftsmen, teachers, health care workers, and farmers.

You don't need to wait for the next Meet your Neighbors article to begin to meet and get to know members of our community. There are many ways, and places, you might get to know new people. Dotson Park offers year-round family-oriented activities: the natu-

Living With Noise

I live on South Danby Road. We have been getting more and more traffic and it's becoming louder and louder. I wanted to know how loud it really was, so I bought an inexpensive hand-held decibel meter through Amazon.

I sat in my driveway and read the meter as the vehicles went by. Here's what I found: For the most part, an ordinary well-maintained car or pick-up truck comes in at between 69 and 74dB. The Dollar General 18-wheeler is just a bit above that range and well within its legal limit. But a blue, souped up, lifted pick-up from Spencer was more than 90dB, as was a combination vehicle (a vehicle made up of a cab and a flat-bed tractor trailer).

Although you may think that all vehicles must be under 90dB, that's not quite accurate. Yes, 90dB is the limit for certain vehicles, but others have a limit that is lower than 90dB, and the weight and speed of the vehicle also come into play.

After I took a photo of the offending vehicle, I reported it to the State Police. Reports can also go the County Sheriff but, with many vehicles coming from Spencer, crossing the county line, the State Police have jurisdiction. The police will contact the owner and give them a warning.

After several complaints, the State Police have said they are considering setting up a decibel station, perhaps on 96B, to officially ticket offenders. If you feel your road is a good candidate for a station, give them a call.

If this issue interests you, take a look at the law to understand the types of vehicles, weights, and speeds involved in deter-

Submission Guidelines: Before submitting an item for the Danby News, please have a look at the Submission Guidelines. You can request them by Email from the editor at [danbynews@tedcrane.com] or find them at [danbyny.org/DanbyNews]. If you're thinking of sending something for publication in the Danby News, there's two documents to read: the Guidelines and the Submission Guidelines at the same web location.

You'll learn what is, and isn't acceptable material for publication. If it's acceptable, we'll make an effort to include it; generally, we print everything we receive! You'll find hints about how to prepare a submission. Following these guidelines makes the editing and layout easier.

ral playground, disk golf, walks and hikes, and sledding and nordic skiing. During the summer, visit the Summer Market (also held in Dotson Park) and get to know some of our local produce growers and artisans. Bring the kids out for special events like concerts, the Harvest Festival, or Trunk or Treat.

If you're of a certain age, join the Danby Seniors for their monthly luncheon (often held at the Danby Community Church). Neighborhoods have their own community events, like the West Danby picnic, and the Bald Hill Road Picnic and Pie Contest. Talk to your neighbors, and create a reason to get together—a neighborhood yard sale day or a progressive dinner.

The Community Council will continue to host events where community members can get together and enjoy arts and educational events. This summer and fall there were community music-making afternoons, the amazing knife throwing demonstration, and a happily successful Harvest Festival.

In this time of lingering COVID precautions, we're figuring out new presentation venues so we can bring more fine music and interesting programs such as a regional rock and mineral show. You'll find out all about it here, in the Danby News. (pg) mining decibel limits. Google "NYS VAT 386" and click on the first thing that pops up.

Having a hand-held decibel meter can have some interesting consequences. You can set decibel limits within your own home to keep kids under a certain limit, you can home school interesting science projects (like the loudness of peepers in the spring), and you can decide whether using hearing protection is wise, based on the sound pressure from your lawn mower or some other noisemaker.

Don't forget to test your own vehicle to make sure you are staying within the legal limit.

If we all work together to do this, Danby will become a much more quiet place to live. (rr)

The Box On The Wall

Digital transformation can be described as the process of applying new technology to improve the quality or value of everyday life. The trouble is, today's digital transformations often fail to duplicate either the quality or the value of the things that are replaced.

Let's talk telephone calls. For decades, the telephone was a rock-solid device with known behavior. The telephone rings, you pick it up, and immediately begin a clear conversation with whoever called you. Right?

The first round of changes, forty or fifty years ago, mostly involved bells and whistles (sometimes literally) that did not affect the utility-level behavior of the telephone. Think of memory dialing, automatic answering and messaging, and the hold and mute buttons. Speakerphones were useful because they only slightly distorted the sound quality.

Then came mobile phones. A car phone was one heck of a status symbol even if it was the size of a concrete block and almost as heavy. Riding around in a car, you didn't expect it to sound as clear as a wall phone, so you accepted the tradeoff of quality for convenience.

Mobile phones turned into handhelds and the monolithic Phone Companies multiplied into a network of resellers that existed to make a dollar but created no infrastructure. The customer had to accept a new reality of dropped calls, echoes, conversations with strangers and worse. But still, we accepted the tradeoff of quality for convenience. And we got used to paying more than a thousand dollars a year for the service.

"Hello, can you hear me?" "Sorry, I can't hear you, my earpiece isn't working." "This is a call for Spectrum customers." "Could you repeat that, I just came out of a tunnel." "Are you taking advantage of Medicare Services?" "No, I didn't mean to call you, my pocket dialed you."

As a piece in The Atlantic magazine said, "The first minute of every phone call is torture now. You are forced to fight with the apparatus that makes the call in the hopes that it will successfully connect you."

We can dream of bringing back the simple box that always has the voice you want to hear inside of it. But it won't happen. (tc)

Reminiscing #3

November can be a fickle month, weather wise. It can be mild or wild.

Besides Thanksgiving, November brings to my mind Veteran's Day on November 11. A few years back, my friend Chris Allinger, from radio station Q-Country, recorded the voices of some local veterans wishing listeners a happy 4th of July. Those recorded included my Dad, Bobby Gombash, a proud Air Force veteran, and Joe Freedman, Dale Burgess, Pete Hansen, Dan Meyer, Tim Merritt, Paula Nelson, Karen VanEtten and Richard Wilbur. I frequently listen to it just to hear my Dad's voice, but all those who serve past, present, and future are all heroes.

In my November 11, 2004 column, I mentioned that I had heard from Don Burdick, former neighbor, friend, and principal of the Danby Elementary School (1966-1979), who had moved to Florida with his wife, Mary Lou. Don reminisced about school field trips and said that he missed his vegetable garden, fishing in the streams of West Danby, and friend...but he did not miss the snow and cold weather. Both Don and Mary Lou have now passed but the memories of that lovely couple will always remain; their daughter Lori and son Bob continue living in Florida.

In my November 25, 2004 column I wrote about the new Danby T-shirt, available at what was then the "new" Danby Market. The shirt logo proclaims that there has been a Danby, New York since 1795! This would be the time to let folks know that Judy Vandermark (from the Market) passed away last month. She had been living in Milwaukee with her son. Judy hoped to get back to Ithaca to live, but health issues prevented her from doing that. She was a very sweet lady and truly enjoyed being part of the Danby community.

I closed the November 25 column this way, referring to Thanksgiving: Traditions are what life is all about and they need not be fancy or complicated or tiring. They simply are the threads that lovingly sew families and friends together with stitches that do not unravel and do not break. They return vivid memories to us which we keep stored in our hearts and in our minds from days gone by and they serve as blueprints for the future. I am thankful for so many things, and while life is far from perfect for most of us, it often is the little things we can count on to get us through our days, to cushion our falls and sweeten our joys.

I agree with author Laura Ingalls Wilder when she says, "I am beginning to learn that it is the sweet, simple things of life which are the real ones after all."

Happy Thanksgiving to everyone and thank you to all who serve our country! (gh)

Flying Under The Radar: Danby's 2023 Budget

Let's get your attention right away. How's this for inflation: a ten percent increase in property taxes? It probably won't happen, but not for lack of trying.

A former Danby Supervisor once declared that spending the taxpayer's money and making a budget is the Town Board's most important job. During October, 2022, the Town Board racked up meeting hours working on the 2023 budget. On Friday, October 28, it agreed to hold the mandatory Budget Public Hearing on Wednesday, November 9. (Various times were discussed.)

Public attendance during these working sessions was almost non-existent. This is not unusual for Danby but a careful observer might have seen that only minimal notice of the meetings was given on the Town's web site. In fact, the Town Board Newsletter even got the date of the Public Hearing wrong, listing it on November 1.

Public participation in the process, once possible because the Supervisor would recognize raised hands for questions, is almost nonexistent now. The Town Board has created meeting rules that, in effect, prohibit questions and comments from the floor.

Following, let alone understanding, the budget documents is not easy. Even the Town Board seems to begin its lessons from scratch every year with the bookkeeper explaining each line item. Nevertheless, a pretty clear picture has emerged.

Remember that everything, for all of us, has become more expensive. We're just not used to inflation, and the Town isn't well positioned for it, either. As the Supervisor wrote in the November issue of the Town Board News, "The Board tried to postpone [tax] increases in the last couple of years. We did that by not saving up for known future expenditures and by using savings to fund part of the budget."

Some might say that the Town also hasn't been exactly frugal in its authorization of purchases and other expenses. For example, the 2023 budget includes $20,000 for the Danby Town Board News and there was talk of hiring an employee to produce it. (Sanity check: that's almost double the cost of the Danby News. You can compare the results.) The budget included five-digit figures for computer-related expenses without any public review of the ways the same result could be achieved at a lower cost. There was even talk of hiring I.T. staff to manage computer activities.

Personnel expenses have skyrocketed in recent years; the Clerk, for example, was budgeted for about $39,000 in 2019, but is approaching $50,000 in 2023. Meeting attendees were treated to some pretty strong language when the Clerk was allowed to advocate for an even higher salary.

During its October 28 meeting, the Town Board finally got to the bottom line: a ten percent tax levy increase (actually, a few thousandths of a percent less; the Supervisor observed, roughly, "That looks better than a ten percent.")

Seeing that frightening number, the Town Board made no great effort to reduce expenditures. Instead, it agreed to, once again, take money from savings with the intent to reduce the increase to an amount compatible with inflation estimates. Again, to quote the Supervisor, "[This] is not something we can keep doing."

Some might say that spending down savings should already have stopped. Will the continuing drain hinder the Town's ability to respond to emergencies and unexpected expenses? After all, that's what savings are for. Very little, if any, discussion on this topic took place in public.

To be fair, the Town Board faced some tough choices. Yet, though all the hours of discussion, there were only a few proposals to not increase line items and few to reduce items, either. Quoting the Supervisor, "More spending, more taxes to pay for it."

What can the public do about this? Taxpayers are in an unenviable position: absent a working knowledge of the budget components, it's difficult to give meaningful, detailed comments. Bear that in mind when you attend the Public Hearing on November 9 (at whatever time it is scheduled for), but don't miss this chance to take part in the process.

You can attend via Zoom (caveat: your microphone will not be turned on except during your "time" of the actual public hearing) or in person in Town Hall (caveat: during a recent meeting, the police were called to enforce the Town Board's meeting rules). (tc)

Snow Shovelers Needed

The Tompkins County Office for the Aging maintains a list of individuals who would be willing to do snow shoveling/plowing for older adults. Many older adults in our community are not able to remove the snow from their driveways and sidewalks without assistance. Deep snow and icy sidewalks are dangerous for everyone but especially for those who may have mobility difficulties.

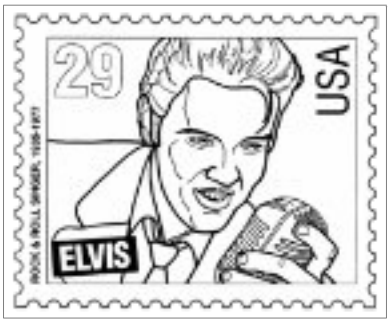
The office is currently updating its list and needs more workers, especially those willing to work in places in rural areas. If you are interested in assisting older adults by shoveling or plowing—on either a paid or volunteer basis—please call the Tompkins County Office for the Aging, 607.274.5482. If your name was listed last year, and you would like to be listed again, please notify us.

Danby Seniors Trip to Penn's Peak

On Wednesday, November 30, the Danby Seniors are boarding the bus for a trip to Penn's Peak for a luncheon and a special Elvis Christmas Show with Ryan Pelton.

The bus will pick up at the Danby Church at 9am, so plan to arrive by 8:45am. There are no stops along the way so bring your own snack. The destination is approximately 150 miles.

Lunch is at Noon. It will be served family style and includes a plated salad, rolls, pot roast, an additional meat, potatoes, vegetables, salad, dessert and beverage. The concert begins at 1pm.



Cost is $60 per person inclusive (bus, luncheon, concert, driver tip). Non-members: $65. If you wish to join the Danby Seniors, membership is $5 per year.

The bus will return to the Danby Church at approximately 5:30pm.

Make your check payable to Danby Seniors and send it to Pat Phelps, 17 Woodlane Road, Ithaca, NY. Final Payment is due by Friday, November 11, 2022. Contact Pat, [patriciaphelps2.0@gmail.com] or 607.227.6478 with questions. (ng)

Free Coffee and Donuts

Danby's Community Church is offering Free Coffee And Donuts Fridays, once a month, 7:30-9:30am, for the rest of the year. That's 11/18, and 12/16...all 3rd Fridays. Open to the public! 1859 Danby Road, 607.272.1687, [danbychurch.org].

They're in need of volunteers to help, 7-10am, with prep and cleanup. (cmc)

Seniors Update

The November meeting of the Danby Seniors will be on Thursday, November 3, Noon, in the Danby Community Church for a dish to share luncheon.

Our hosts in October were the J. VanDeMarks and the Cuyles. Bill Cuyle called out three raffle winners who received $15 gift cards. We had a great turnout, even needed more tables. It was wonderful to see everyone!

The December holiday luncheon will be at the Lakewatch Inn this year, at Noon on December 15. We spaced it later as our November trip is on the 30th, only a day before our usual meeting day. The cost is $20 per person and must be paid in advance. Menu is choice of either beef tips or chicken marsala and includes potato, pasta, vegetable, salad or soup with breads, light desserts with coffee and a mimosa bar. A cash bar will also be available.

Gay made the initial contact for us and it sounds like it'll be a very festive venue. Sign up with Margie, [margievan@live.com] or 607.273.8046. Lakewatch is just 5 minutes North of Stewart Park on NYS Rt.34.

The bus trip to Penn's Peak on November 30 is nearly full. You might contact Pat Phelps, 607.539.6477, if you're interested to see if there have been any cancellations. It's a full day and includes a Christmas show and luncheon.

Since our December gathering is mid-month we've decided to take January off, so no meeting. (mv)
